Gentlemen:

In connection with a new World History textbook which we are publishing we would like to obtain an illustration of an early Greek coin.

As it is to be used in connection with the discussion of Draco and the establishment of the drachma as the unit of currency, it should be of as early a period as possible.

Are you in a position to assist us in this matter? If you could furnish an illustration, or refer us to books in which the proper illustration appears and which might be photostated, we would appreciate it very much indeed. Possibly the Society has pictures of this sort for sale. If so we would be glad to have you send us one, with your bill. The usual credit will of course be given in reproduction.

Thanking you for any assistance you may be able to give us,

Yours very truly,

ELS/S

Dear Madam:-

Please pardon the delay in responding to your letter of December 11th. You ask for a reference to a book which might be useful to you. I believe you will find in the Public Library or at the Metropolitan Museum a copy of what is known as, "Head's Guide to Gold and Silver Coins of the Ancients," published by the British Museum. This has very good heliotype illustrations and should meet your need.

If they do not and if you care to come to our Museum, we will gladly show you substitutes..

Yours very truly,

Secretary

Dear Sirs:

Kindly advise if you can supply a copy of Tenney Frank's "Economic History of Rome" and whether you allow a discount to libraries.

Very truly yours,

Secretary
